The daily press reports that Joseph Pulitzer of New York has subscribed $2,000,000 for the purpose of establishing a national school of journalism. The announcement will be hailed with delight by Editors C. C. Goodwin, Charles Penrose and others of the boys, who will no doubt hasten to have their names enrolled.

Attorney W. F. Knox of Beaver, through the medium of the Milford Times, makes the official announcement that he has returned to his first love—the republican party. There will likely be another census enumerator around before the opening of the fall campaign, and his report will be awaited with interest.

Iron county should take an active interest in the National Irrigation Congress to meet in Oregon next month. We should be entitled to a number of delegates, on the various counts, and our people should see to it that they are represented. It would do no harm to enter exhibits to compete for some of the valuable prizes offered.

The Washington County Fair Association, in its next premium list just issued, among other liberal premiums, offers $10 for the best rendered selection by a brass band. There is nothing in the proposal to limit the competition to bands of Washington county, and it strikes us that it would be a brilliant stroke for the Cedar band to go down and capture the prize. What do you think about it, boys?

WHERE, O where is our water system? We had confidently believed at the time our citizens so unanimously voted for the bonding of the city for water works that before the rainy summer season came again our city would be provided with good culinary water; but alas, how often we are disappointed. As far as the proposition has progressed thus far is to have an engineer look over the situation and submit some estimates and offer some suggestions. At the rate we are going it will take ten years to get the main pipes laid. Seems to us that a strong injection of ginger into the mayor and city council would help matters materially. Well, they know the wishes of the people, all we can do is to lay low and wait.

The Milford Times of July 21 contained the following item:
Milford has the fastest race horse in southern Utah. It has the champion blue bull team of this section, the biggest copper mines in the state, the finest spelter in the west, the purest water, the most salubrious air, the most progressive citizens, some of the biggest farms, the smartest children, the poorest local government and the greatest expectations on earth. What more do we need?

This week Col. A. Corry tried to match a race between their fastest horse and his Shannock, for $500 a side. The Milford sport replied that his horse was lame now. Rather a lame story this. Come, Milford, put up or shut up or we will be forced to the conclusion that only one of your claims is well founded.

An esteemed exchange says: Just let your subscription go. It's only a small sum—the publisher does not need it. If he asks you for it get as hopping mad as you can and tell him to stop the paper—you never read it anyhow. Go home and borrow your neighbors. When the reporter talks always be busy. Make him feel as if he is intruding. When the advertising or job man comes, say you don't need to advertise—everybody knows you; that you will try to get along without printed stationery—it's too expensive; that business is slack and you must economize. Never drop in to see the editor unless you want a complimentary notice or a lengthy obituary notice for a beloved relative. Never recommend the paper to anyone; when you speak of it say, "Yes, we have a little sheet, but it don't amount to much." Keep it up a year or two and you will have a dead newspaper, a dead set of rich chaps, and a dead town.

There is to be no more dancing in school houses of this state. This is the purport of a ruling handed down by Justice McCarthy and concurred in by Chief Justice Rankin and Associate Justice Harte, of the supreme court. The case this brought forth the above ruling, originated in the Alpine school district, Utah county, and has been strictly watched by supervisors throughout the state. The opinion reverses the decision of the lower court. After enumerating the facts in the case, Justice McCarthy closes as follows:

"It must be conceded that neither the state nor any political subdivision thereof could legally levy and collect a tax for the purpose of building a dance hall, and should such a thing be attempted any taxpayer whose property would be subject to such a tax could bring an action in a court of equity and restrain its collection. This being so, it necessarily follows that a board of trustees have no right, and it would be in violation of their sworn duty for them, as is proposed in this case, to, in effect, convert a public school building into a public and private dance hall.
Not only would the proposed use of the school building be opposed, as above stated, to public policy, but in direct violation of the provisions of the statute under which the defendants attempt to justify and defend their action."

OUR ANTHRACITE COAL VEINS.

Process of Formation Described by Marysville Free Lance.

THE RECORDMAN is not prepared to vouch for the correctness of the following. He is not as old as the editor of the Marysville Free Lance, and consequently was not on the scene at the time the coal veins near Harmony were being formed. However, it is interesting reading and we reproduce it in full.

"Brose" (E. A.) Thompson accompanied by Mrs. Thompson came down from his ranch in Circle Valley Tuesday. Brose has just returned from his anthracite coal veins situated about four miles north east of New Harmony in Iron County, and talked interestingly of his property upon which eleven men are working. In describing the coal veins, of which there are three, averaging nearly four feet thick, Mr. Thompson said their course downward is nearly vertical. A tunnel is being run and will intersect the veins at great depth and afford an enormous stopping area.

"The veins are backed by sandstone while the west vein has an eruptive, probably andesite, hanging wall."

"It will, probably, interest many Free Lance readers; who have no time nor opportunities for study on the subject, to briefly describe the modus operandi of nature by which the thoughtful old Dame provides a supply of fuel for the comfort and progress of the human family."

"The gentle reader may go backward in the history of mother earth as many millions of years as he or she may see fit, and then add a few millions more of years. Tropical heat and moisture combined to produce rank vegetation. Down near New Harmony was a low-lying swamp underlain by sandstone. About 32 feet of vegetable mould was formed in the swamp when the bottom settled several feet and was covered by water. Conditions were admirable for the existence and multiplication of mollusks. Of that species Lemnibranchia predominated and multiplied until the bed was about four feet thick and was the "roof" of the embryo coal vein. A slight upward movement of the swamp occurred and was again covered with vegetation until another 32 feet bed of vegetable mould was deposited. Thus alternate settling and rising of the swamp took place until three separate beds of vegetable mould was deposited. Then followed a subsidence of the swamp and the laying down of several hundred, perhaps thousands, of feet of sandstone, lime or other rock material. The pressure of the overlying mass of rock reduced the 32 feet of vegetable mould in each of the layers to about 6 feet in each of them, while heat and other agencies transformed the mould into bituminous coal. Millions of years afterwards, or towards the close of the Tertiary age, the earth's crust was broken and the New Harmony coal beds became almost vertical veins. From the earth's melted interior a great mass of eruptive rock substance forced its way up between the west coal vein and the adjoining "country rock" which it probably covered. The added pressure reduced each vein of bituminous coal to about four feet in thickness, while the intense heat of the adjacent mass of intruded andesite transformed the vein filling into anthracite coal."

"For further information apply to Brose Thompson."

A Serious Accident.

While enroute to the dipping pens to cook for the hands, Miss Sarah Webster met with a serious accident, and one which might easily have proved fatal. The wagon in which she with some of the workers was riding was drawn by four horses, and while descending a steep pitch the horses became frightened and ran away. Miss Webster was thrown out and sustained some severe bruises and her spine was somewhat injured, although no bones were broken. She was taken to the Bowser ranch and cared for, and from last account was improving. None of the other occupants of the wagon were injured.

Mr. George Davis of Kanarra, is in Cedar, the guest of Mrs. J. R. Richards.
